At Covenant House Georgia, youth find more than a safe place to stay for the night. They find a path toward a better future - and the tools to make it happen.

Our Rights of Passage (ROP) Independent Living Program helps young people like Jipan, who first came to CHGA this past July. After three months in our crisis shelter, she applied for and was accepted into the ROP program.

Now, Jipan loves living in an on-site CHGA cottage with her roommates.

Together, they are learning to navigate life on their own - with case managers, support staff, volunteers, and friends close by.

Jipan has found her passion in roller skating; her face lights up when she shows off her tricks - including skating backwards! Through her roller skating skills, Jipan has also found a job at the local skating rink and joined the skating rink's team!

With support from CHGA and people like you, Jipan is learning how to turn her interests and joys into opportunities - and she is eager for all the excitement of the holidays ahead.

With your support, youth like Jipan can share in the joys of the season while creating their brighter futures. Will you make your gift to help make it possible?
