Join Us in Strengthening School Communities

Many young learners are grappling with global events, family dynamics, systemic barriers, mental health, and other challenges.

When students are feeling overwhelmed, they need to be able to turn to a trusted, trauma-informed adult for support.

For more than 1,500 students each year across over 75 Atlanta area schools, that adult is one of CHRIS 180's school-based therapists.

Our team supports students with school-based mental health services, at no cost to students and their families. By addressing family challenges and providing resources to help caregivers, we also help create a home environment where children can thrive.

With your support, CHRIS 180 will continue to equip young learners and their families with the mental health resources they need.

"Doing school-based work is our model. It's not just a therapist who pops into a school now and then - it's a sustainable, ongoing system that helps students over time.

Our therapists become a part of each school's culture and community."

- Brittney Walters, MSW, LCSW
Vice President of School-Based
Mental Health

With your support, our School-Based Mental Health Program will continue to create a ripple effect in school communities.
